

SIGNAL AT DAWN

An original synthetic screenplay excerpt created for the Agentic Cinema hackathon.

Written for the Script Sentinel demonstration

INT. NORTHSTAR ARCHIVE - NIGHT

LEENA, a documentary editor, studies a wall of index cards. A handwritten card reads: 'Apollo 11 landed on the Moon on July 20, 1971.'

LEENA

That date feels wrong. Check it before the narration session.

ARUN enters with a bottle labeled NORTHSTAR COLA, a fictional product created for this screenplay.

ARUN

The sponsor says Northstar Cola has been
'fueling explorers since 1899.'

LEENA

There is no sponsor. You invented that company yesterday.

She opens a public-domain collection and reads a short phrase attributed to William Shakespeare: 'All the world's a stage.'

ARUN

Can we establish whether the source is in the public domain, and whether this exact wording is accurate?

On screen is a draft caption: 'The National Aeronautics and Space Administration was founded in 1958.'

LEENA

Verify that against a primary source too.

The final card contains an unresolved statement: 'The first public film screening happened in 1894.'

LEENA

That depends on what counts as public, and what counts as film. Mark it for human review.

FADE OUT.